STATE LAW GOVERNS

Initiative and Referendum in Cities Where Charter Does not Prescribe Manner of Use

Oklahoma City, July 30.—In cities where charters were framed without providing for the manner of the exercise of the initiative and referendum powers reserved by the constitution to the whole people of the city as to its municipal legislation or amendments to its charter, the duties required of the governor and secretary of state, relative to the manner of exercising the initiative and referendum powers as to state legislation, shall be performed by the chief executive and chief clerk as to municipal legislation.

Such is the opinion of the supreme court in the case of E. S. Lawther against J. E. Nissler, mayor of Guthrie, appeals from the court of Logan county. Also, the duties of the attorney general, as to state legislation, shall be performed by the attorney of such municipality in municipal legislation. The judgment of the district court was affirmed.

Denver Plans Gorgeous Decorations.

Denver, Colo., July 30.—No city was ever better "dressed up" to receive a great company of guests than will be Denver, when the hosts of Knights Templars from all parts of the land gather here week after next for their thirty-second triennial convocation. An army of electricians, decorators and others is already at work, and their efforts promise to result in the most lavish and beautiful display of flags, bunting, electric lights and color imaginable.

No one can estimate the amount of bunting that will be used—one enthusiastic decorating company puts it at millions of yards—and the demand upon the electric companies is already so great that they announce they can receive no more orders.

Probably the most beautiful and elaborate feature of the decorative scheme will be the Court of Honor, extending four blocks in the downtown district. The court will be surrounded by forty-eight immense electric pillars, each having a different combination of colors.

The leading business streets will be lined with light poles, each bearing the national colors, represented in two flags. Between these will be the Templar insignia of cross and crown and a maltese cross in black besides which there will be festoons of colored lights.

At night the visiting Templars will be treated to the dazzling sight of a mammoth electric cross on Pike's Peak. Other features of the decorations will include reproductions of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem, the watch tower of Chateau de Langliers, France, and the Micklethorpe bar of the Benedictine Abbey of York, Eng., which was a popular meeting place for the knights 400 to 500 years ago.

Senators Stand by Patterson.

Washington, D. C., July 29.—Senators Gore and Owen, and Hoke Smith of Georgia, called on President Wilson today and urged him to stand pat upon the nomination of A. E. Patterson, the negro attorney of Muskogee who has just been named as register of the treasury, a $4,000 job. Senator Vardaman of Mississippi, still insists he will oppose the confirmation of Patterson or any other negro. A number of protests have been received here from Oklahoma against naming Patterson. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo is standing behind Senator Gore on the appointment.

A PLEA FOR BETTER SCHOOLS

PRESIDENT BRILES ADVOCATES NINE MONTHS TERM FOR ADA CITY SCHOOLS.

The County Excise Board has recently had before them for consideration the recommendation of the City Board of Education that 1-2 mill be added to the 5 mill levy for support and maintenance of the public schools of this city. After careful consideration they decided that it would not be wise to permit the people to vote upon the proposition for extra levy. I have not investigated the law relative to this matter and I presume there is no appeal from that decision. I do not question the integrity of the Board or their disposition to do what they believe to be the just and fair thing. I do question, however, the judgment of the Board in withholding from the people the right to say whether or not they want a nine months term of school with efficient service. In justification of their action they say that a number of prominent citizens, large tax payers, have asked them not to submit the proposition to the voter. The laws of Oklahoma wisely provide that every voter shall have an equal voice in the matter of assessment of property values for public school purposes. I shall not here go into a discussion of this question further than to say that the state of Oklahoma is sufficiently advanced to adhere to the principle that every child should have the opportunity of securing an education at public expense. My experience and observation has been that in every community it happens that there are a number of large property holders who are opposed to taxation for any purpose. The community, however, which has made it possible for these property values to be accumulated has a right to speak with reference to expenditures for public education.

I am thoroughly convinced that the people of this city are not disposed to be satisfied with anything short of the best instruction that can be given in the schools of this city. The citizenship of this city is progressive in matter of education as well as in matters of material interest. They have always responded heartily and readily to any legitimate demand for improved service in the public schools and I wish to say just here that for the money expended we have without question the best public school system in Oklahoma.

I wish to call your attention now to the fact that we are spending less for education in this city than any other town in the state of anything like our wealth and population. In discussion with the Excise Board yesterday it happened that the President of the Board of Education of Shawnee was present. He stated that out of the twenty-four mill levy ten mills is used for public school purposes. In this city out of a levy of 34.8 mills we are using five mills for public school purposes. It would be reasonable to suppose that the difference in expenditure would represent the difference in efficiency of instruction.

The principal thing to which I wish to direct your attention is that the Board of Education and Superintendent have been working toward the end of establishing in this city a high school which shall be a equal of any high school in the state. The argument has been made that the Normal schools of Oklahoma were little more than high schools for the communities in which they were located. This argument is valid and cannot be met so long as the community in which the schools are located do not maintain a high school course in connection with the public school system. We give the work of the 9th grade in the Normal school and we must continue to do so long as sixty per cent of the teachers of the state have not had instruction in the subjects of the first year of the high school. These Soda served at our fountain is more than a tasty thirst-quenching beverage. It is tonic and refreshing, and every glass a strengthener for the stomach.

Our Soda is absolutely pure, strengthening, reviving, refreshing and healthful. It "lands direct" on the "dry" spot and quenches thirst as nothing else will, because we serve it at just the right temperature.

The supreme court has decided that in cities under commission government the same procedure must be followed in the initiative and referendum as in handling a state question, unless the charter provides otherwise. In the case of Ada the charter not only does not provide otherwise, but it specifically provides that the state law shall govern. However, little things like the city charter and supreme court decision cut no ice where the present bunch of commissioners is concerned.

FELT BAD ALL THE TIME

Shellhorn Lady Suffered a Great Deal, But Is All Right Now.

Shellhorn, Ala.—In a letter from this place, Mrs. Carrie May says: "A short time ago, I commenced to have weak spells and headaches. I felt bad all the time, and soon grew so bad I couldn't stay up. I thought I would die. At last my husband got me a bottle of Cardul, and it helped me; so he got some more. After I had taken the second bottle, I was entirely well. I wish every lady, suffering from womanly trouble, would try Cardul. It is the best medicine I know of. It did me more good than anything I ever used."

Cardul is a woman's tonic—a strengthening medicine for women, made from ingredients that act specifically on the womanly organs, and thus help to build up the womanly constitution to glowing good health.

As a remedy for woman's ills, it has a successful record of over 50 years. Your druggist sells it. Please try it.

SENATOR DU PONT IS 75

Washington, D. C., July 30.—Senator Henry A. Du Pont of Delaware received the congratulations of his colleagues in the senate today on reaching his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary. So many men who are comparatively young are being sent to the senate in these days of "election by the people" that senators of Col. Du Pont's age are becoming scarce. The Delaware senator is a splendid type of the old regime that is fast disappearing. A multi-millionaire, an aristocrat of aristocrats and a trust magnate, so-called. Senator Du Pont, naturally enough, finds himself out of sympathy with much of the sentiment that finds expression in the senate nowadays. A majority of the old-time members who were leaders when he first came to the senate have since dropped or been dropped out of public life. The Delaware senator is not what is called a good "mixer" but his attractive personal qualities, coupled with his ability and big conscientious performance of his public duties, have earned for him a high place in the esteem of members of congress and others in official life in Washington.

No man in the United States senate can boast of more distinguished lineage than Senator Du Pont. Pierre Samuel Du Pont de Nemours, the founder of the American branch of the family, was one of the ablest political reformers of France during the period of the revolution. He was inspector general of commerce under Turgot when that eminent statesman was controller general of French finances. During the revolution he fled to the United States to escape the guillotine. In 1802 he returned to France and was instrumental in promoting the treaty by which Louisiana was sold to the United States.

It was Eleuthere Irenee Du Pont, the son of Pierre Samuel, who began the manufacture of gunpowder in Delaware and thus founded the great industry controlled by the family today. He set up the first powder mill on the banks of the Brandywine in 1802. The models and machinery he had brought from France. The industry was a success from the start. The founder died in 1834 and was succeeded by his eldest son, Alfred, who built additional mills and enlarged the business greatly. Alfred died in 1850 and was succeeded by his brother Henry, who remained the head of the firm until 1889. At his death the business went into the hands of his nephew, Eugene Du Pont, who died in 1901 and was succeeded by his son, T. Coleman Du Pont, and his nephew, who is the present senator.

But Senator Du Pont's claims to distinction do not rest upon his family tree alone. Among the things of which he might boast is his record of service in the civil war. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in the year that the war began and was appointed to the command of a light battery. His father, who was a veteran of 1812, was very proud of his handsome son and begged the privilege from Simon Cameron, then secretary of war, of supplying the troop with the best horses that money could buy. Thus mounted, the battery was the finest in the northern army. Captain Du Pont served in the battles of Newmarket, W. Va., as chief of artillery and in the battles of Piedmont, Lynchburg, Opequan, Fishers Hill and Cedar Creek, in the latter three as commander of artillery of Gen. Crook's corps. He was breveted major and lieutenant colonel and awarded a congressional medal of honor for distinguished gallantry.

Senator Du Pont has carried his military bearing and manner down with him to the present. In private business and in the discharge of his public duties, his every movement savors of military precision. Thinking and planning succinctly, he devotes little time to trivialities. This trait has caused many to look upon him as an autocrat, when such an impression, his friends say, is farthest from what he would wish to convey. It has caused many to regard him as a high-headed aristocrat, who loftily gazed above the heads of the common people.

The senator has not mingled with the masses. In fact, his coterie of associates in private life has been limited, but their loyalty was attested by the way they stuck to him through the eleven sensational years when J. Edward Addicks sought to dominate Delaware politics and eventually elevated him to the senate in the face of the Addicks' opposition.

Senator Du Pont lays no claim to being a speechmaker or a spellbinder. Throughout his career he has shunned rather than sought the limelight. His diffidence is appreciated by newspaper reporters, and the man who has obtained an interview on the political situation from the Delaware senator is yet to present himself.

THE SCHOOL TAX AMENDMENT

I desire to call your attention to one of the questions to be voted upon August 5th, one week from now. This is state question No. 57, the third question on the ballot.

If this measure should be adopted, the school district tax paid by all corporations which operate in more than one county will be distributed per capita among all of the school children of the state as other state funds are now apportioned. This will give material relief to those districts which have no corporation property and will result in materially reducing the school district levy in these districts. It will result in making more nearly uniform the school the school district levies in the state. As it now is, one district with a large corporation valuation may have a school levy of fifteen mills, and then not have a school term equal in length to the one having the small levy.

I desire that you take this matter with you school board members. Place before them the question as it exists in your county and in your school districts. Urge them to vote for the best interests of their schools. Should the measure fail to receive a majority of the entire vote polled in this election it will be defeated. A silent vote on this question is a negative vote. Instruct your board members that if they favor this question they should vote and work for its adoption. If they oppose the measure, they should work for its defeat. The passage of this bill will work a hardship on some few districts in this state. It will be for the betterment of a large number.

Since there has been no argument prepared on either side of this question, I have concluded to call the attention of the school people of the state to this measure in this measure and ask that every individual vote and work for that which he believes to be for the best interests of the schools of the state as a whole.

Yours very truly,
R. H. WILSON,
State Supt.

SHH! LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN FADED GRAY HAIR—USE SAGE TEA.

SAGE MIXED WITH SULPHUR RESTORES NATURAL COLOR AND LUSTRE TO HAIR.

Why suffer the handicap of looking old. Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance.

Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use; but listen, avoid preparations put up by druggists as they usually use too much sulphur, which makes the hair sticky. Get "Wyeth's" which can always be depended upon to darken beautifully and is the best thing known to remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

By using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair. It does it so naturally and evenly—you moisten a sponge or soft brush, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time which requires but a few moments. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored and it becomes glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.—Gwin & Mays Drug Co., Ada, Okla. ## DALLAS MURDER

A DEEP MYSTERY

Dallas, July 29.—Shrouded in deeper mystery than ever, the brutal murder of Miss Florence Brown, in the heart of the business district here is still an enigma to the Dallas police. Persistent efforts on the part of scores of officers have so far been fruitless and the police and detectives assert they have not the slightest tangible clue upon which to work.

Numerous theories have been advanced and have been followed to the end, but without result. The girl was found murdered in the offices of Robinson & Styron, near Main and Field streets, at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

Officers and detectives have worked on many different clues. One was that a woman committed the crime, and still another was that the dead had been done through jealousy. These were probe d to the bottom and resulted in nothing.

A SMALL FIRE

TUESDAY AFTERNOON

About 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon fire destroyed the barn on the I. M. King place, 14th and Rennie. The place is occupied by A. M. Bailey and family.

It is supposed that the fire started from some burning trash near at hand. It had made such headway before being discovered that it was impossible to save more than the hull of the structure. Mr. Bailey had a quantity of feed and some household effects stored in the barn none of which was saved.

STATE LAW GOVERNS

Initiative and Referendum in Cities Where Charter Does not Prescribe Manner of Use

Oklahoma City, July 30.—In cities where charters were framed without providing for the manner of the exercise of the initiative and referendum powers reserved by the constitution to the whole people of the city as to its municipal legislation or amendments to its charter, the duties required of the governor and secretary of state, relative to the manner of exercising the initiative and referendum powers as to state legislation, shall be performed by the chief executive and chief clerk as to municipal legislation.

Such is the opinion of the supreme court in the case of E. S. Lawther against J. E. Nissler, mayor of Guthrie, appeals from the court of Logan county. Also, the duties of the attorney general, as to state legislation, shall be performed by the attorney of such municipality in municipal legislation. The judgment of the district court was affirmed.

Denver Plans Gorgeous Decorations.

Denver, Colo., July 30.—No city was ever better "dressed up" to receive a great company of guests than will be Denver, when the hosts of Knights Templars from all parts of the land gather here week after next for their thirty-second triennial convocation. An army of electricians, decorators and others is already at work, and their efforts promise to result in the most lavish and beautiful display of flags, bunting, electric lights and color imaginable.

No one can estimate the amount of bunting that will be used—one enthusiastic decorating company puts it at millions of yards—and the demand upon the electric companies is already so great that they announce they can receive no more orders.

Probably the most beautiful and elaborate feature of the decorative scheme will be the Court of Honor, extending four blocks in the downtown district. The court will be surrounded by forty-eight immense electric pillars, each having a different combination of colors.

The leading business streets will be lined with light poles, each bearing the national colors, represented in two flags. Between these will be the Templar insignia, of cross and crown and a maltese cross in black besides which there will be festoons of colored lights.

At night the visiting Templars will be treated to the dazzling sight of a mammoth electric cross on Pike's Peak. Other features of the decorations will include reproductions of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem, the watch tower of Chateau de Langliers, France, and the Micklegate bar of the Benedictine Abbey of York, Eng., which was a popular meeting place for the knights 400 to 500 years ago.

Senators Stand by Patterson.

Washington, D. C., July 29.—Senators Gore and Owen, and Hoke Smith of Georgia, called on President Wilson today and urged him to stand pat upon the nomination of A. E. Patterson, the negro attorney of Muskogee who has just been named as register of the treasury, a $4,000 job. Senator Vardaman of Mississippi, still insists he will oppose the confirmation of Patterson or any other negro. A number of protests have been received here from Oklahoma against naming Patterson. Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo is standing behind Senator Gore on the appointment.

A PLEA FOR BETTER SCHOOLS

PRESIDENT BRILES ADVOCATES NINE MONTHS TERM FOR ADA CITY SCHOOLS.

The County Excise Board has recently had before them for consideration the recommendation of the City Board of Education that 1-2 mill be added to the 5 mill levy for support and maintenance of the public schools of this city. After careful consideration they decided that it would not be wise to permit the people to vote upon the proposition for extra levy. I have not investigated the law relative to this matter and I presume there is no appeal from that decision. I do not question the integrity of the Board or their disposition to do what they believe to be the just and fair thing. I do question, however, the judgment of the Board in withholding from the people the right to say whether or not they want a nine months term of school with efficient service. In justification of their action they say that a number of prominent citizens, large tax payers, have asked them not to submit the proposition to the voter. The laws of Oklahoma wisely provide that every voter shall have an equal voice in the matter of assessment of property values for public school purposes. I shall not here go into a discussion of this question further than to say that the state of Oklahoma is sufficiently advanced to adhere to the principle that every child should have the opportunity of securing an education at public expense. My experience and observation has been that in every community it happens that there are a number of large property holders who are opposed to taxation for any purpose. The community, however, which has made it possible for these property values to be accumulated has a right to speak with reference to expenditures for public education.

I am thoroughly convinced that the people of this city are not disposed to be satisfied with anything short of the best instruction that can be given in the schools of this city. The citizenship of this city is progressive in matter of education as well as in matters of material interest. They have always responded heartily and readily to any legitimate demand for improved service in the public schools and I wish to say just here that for the money expended we have without question the best public school system in Oklahoma.

I wish to call your attention now to the fact that we are spending less for education in this city than any other town in the state of anything like our wealth and population. In discussion with the Excise Board yesterday it happened that the President of the Board of Education of Shawnee was present. He stated that out of the twenty-four mill levy ten mills is used for public school purposes. In this city out of a levy of 34.8 mills we are using five mills for public school purposes. It would be reasonable to suppose that the difference in expenditure would represent the difference in efficiency of instruction.

The principal thing to which I wish to direct your attention is that the Board of Education and Superintendent have been working toward the end of establishing in this city a high school which shall be a equal of any high school in the state. The argument has been made that the Normal schools of Oklahoma were little more than high schools for the communities in which they were located. This argument is valid and cannot be met so long as the community in which the schools are located do not maintain a high school course in connection with the public school system. We give the work of the 9th grade in the Normal school and yet must continue to do so long as sixty per cent of the teachers of the state have not had instruction in the subjects of the first year of the high school. These courses, however, are not designed for fourteen year old pupils just entering the high school, and so long as we have a large number of immature pupils in classes just that long will the teachers, for whom these courses are intended not avail themselves of the opportunities offered. I have stated to the governor, to members of the Legislature, and to people in general in this state that the city of Ada had established and purposed to maintain a high school in fact as well as in name. My advocacy of the introduction of the high school course in the public school system, whereby we have lost in enrollment at least 150 pupils, is not a matter of policy, but is an effort to advocate a policy which will ultimately establish the Normal schools (Continued on Page Four.)

The supreme court has decided that in cities under commission government the same procedure must be followed in the initiative and referendum as in handling a state question, unless the charter provides otherwise. In the case of Ada the charter not only does not provide otherwise, but it specifically provides that the state law shall govern. However, little things like the city charter and supreme court decision cut no ice where the present bunch of commissioners is concerned.

NOT A JOKING MATTER.

As the Ada News views the matter, it is something of a joke on Oklahoma Democrats that the first good appointment to a position outside the state made by the administration goes to a Muskogee negro at $5000 per year. This is too serious to be a joking matter. It isn't so much because the job goes to a black, that apparently being a matter of well established custom but because it means one less place for the working democrats of the state. Under the circumstances it is perfectly natural that more or less of a protest is raised.—Chickasha Express.

Well, now, perhaps you are right, but the chances of a white Democrat from Oklahoma getting anything worth while will be very slim as long as they persist in fighting among themselves, and setting up a howl of protest every time one is mentioned for appointment, whether it be for a foreign mission or third class post-office. It is something of a grim joke that they can't lay aside their jealousies of one another, and also a joke that on this account none has been appointed. Probably the president appointed the negro just as a rebuke to the various factions that are constantly knocking one another.

Grandfather Law Upheld.

Oklahoma City, July 29.—Again sustaining the grandfather clause as neither conflicting with the fourteenth or fifteenth amendments to the federal constitution nor the Oklahoma enabling act the Oklahoma supreme court today held that Theodore Goffield, aged Guthrie negro and ex-slave was not entitled to damages through being refused a vote in the 1910 general election.

Goffield sued the precinct inspectors for damages.

LEND A HELPING HAND.

The News is requested on behalf of the clean town committee to appeal to the citizenship of the city for more co-operation. The burden has fallen on a very few and it is becoming very heavy. If any one cannot assist personally, he might contribute a small sum to be used in pushing the work. It is only a few days until the contest closes and the committees are extremely anxious for things to be in first class shape when the inspector slips in to make his rounds.

SENATOR DU PONT IS 75

Washington, D. C., July 30.—Senator Henry A. Du Pont of Delaware received the congratulations of his colleagues in the senate today on reaching his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary. So many men who are comparatively young are being sent to the senate in these days of "election by the people" that senators of Col. Du Pont's age are becoming scarce. The Delaware senator is a splendid type of the old regime that is fast disappearing. A multi-millionaire, an aristocrat of aristocrats and a trust magnate, so-called. Senator Du Pont, naturally enough, finds himself out of sympathy with much of the sentiment that finds expression in the senate nowadays. A majority of the old-time members who were leaders when he first came to the senate have since dropped or been dropped out of public life. The Delaware senator is not what is called a good "mixer" but his attractive personal qualities, coupled with his ability and big conscientious performance of his public duties, have earned for him a high place in the esteem of members of congress and others in official life in Washington.

No man in the United States senate can boast of more distinguished lineage than Senator Du Pont. Pierre Samuel Du Pont de Nemours, the founder of the American branch of the family, was one of the ablest political reformers of France during the period of the revolution. He was inspector general of commerce under Turgot when that eminent statesman was controller general of French finances. During the revolution he fled to the United States to escape the guillotine. In 1802 he returned to France and was instrumental in promoting the treaty by which Louisiana was sold to the United States.

It was Eleuthere Irenee Du Pont, the son of Pierre Samuel, who began the manufacture of gunpowder in Delaware and thus founded the great industry controlled by the family today. He set up the first powder mill on the banks of the Brandywine in 1802. The models and machinery he had brought from France. The industry was a success from the start. The founder died in 1834 and was succeeded by his eldest son, Alfred, who built additional mills and enlarged the business greatly. Alfred died in 1850 and was succeeded by his brother Henry, who remained the head of the firm until 1889. At his death the business went into the hands of his nephew, Eugene Du Pont, who died in 1901 and was succeeded by his son, T. Coleman Du Pont, and his nephew, who is the present senator.

But Senator Du Pont's claims to distinction do not rest upon his family tree alone. Among the things of which he might boast is his record of service in the civil war. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in the year that the war began and was appointed to the command of a light battery. His father, who was a veteran of 1812, was very proud of his handsome son and begged the privilege from Simon Cameron, then secretary of war, of supplying the troop with the best horses that money could buy. Thus mounted, the battery was the finest in the northern army. Captain Du Pont served in the battles of Newmarket, W. Va., as chief of artillery and in the battles of Piedmont, Lynchburg, Opequan, Fishers Hill and Cedar Creek. In the latter three as commander of artillery of Gen. Crook's corps. He was breveted major and lieutenant colonel and awarded a congressional medal of honor for distinguished gallantry.

Senator Du Pont has carried his military bearing and manner down with him to the present. In private business and in the discharge of his public duties, his every movement savors of military precision. Thinking and planning succinctly, he devotes little time to triflingities. This trait has caused many to look upon him as an autocrat, when such an impression, his friends say, is farthest from what he would wish to convey. It has caused many to regard him as a high-headed aristocrat, who loftily gazed above the heads of the common people.

The senator has not mingled with the masses. In fact, his coterie of associates in private life has been limited, but their loyalty was attested by the way they stuck to him through the eleven sensational years when J. Edward Addicks sought to dominate Delaware politics and eventually elevated him to the senate in the face of the Addicks' opposition.

Senator Du Pont lays no claim to being a speechmaker or a spellbinder. Throughout his career he has shunned rather than sought the limelight. His diffidence is appreciated by newspaper reporters, and the man who has obtained an interview on the political situation from the Delaware senator is yet to present himself.

THE SCHOOL TAX AMENDMENT

I desire to call your attention to one of the questions to be voted upon August 5th, one week from now. This is state question No. 57, the third question on the ballot.

If this measure should be adopted, the school district tax paid by all corporations which operate in more than one county will be distributed per capita among all of the school children of the state as other state funds are now apportioned. This will give material relief to those districts which have no corporation property and will result in materially reducing the school district levy in these districts. It will result in making more nearly uniform the school the school district levies in the state. As it now is, one district with a large corporation valuation may have a school levy of fifteen mills, and then not have a school term equal in length to the one having the small levy.

I desire that you take this matter with you school board members. Place before them the question as it exists in your county and in your school districts. Urge them to vote for the best interests of their schools. Should the measure fail to receive a majority of the entire vote polled in this election it will be defeated. A silent vote on this question is a negative vote. Instruct your board members that if they favor this question they should vote and work for its adoption. If they oppose the measure, they should work for its defeat. The passage of this bill will work a hardship on some few districts in this state. It will be for the betterment of a large number.

Since there has been no argument prepared on either side of this question, I have concluded to call the attention of the school people of the state to this measure in this measure and ask that every individual vote and work for that which he believes to be for the best interests of the schools of the state as a whole.

Yours very truly,
R. H. WILSON,
State Supt.

SHH! LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN FADED GRAY HAIR--USE SAGE TEA.

SAGE MIXED WITH SULPHUR RESTORES NATURAL COLOR AND LUSTRE TO HAIR.

Why suffer the handicap of looking old. Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance.

Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use; but listen, avoid preparations put up by druggists as they usually use too much sulphur, which makes the hair sticky; Get "Wyeth's" which can always be depended upon to darken beautifully and is the best thing known to remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

By using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair. It does it so naturally and evenly—you moisten a sponge or soft brush, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time which requires but a few moments. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored and it becomes glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.—Gwin & Mays Drug Co., Ada, Okla. ## DALLAS MURDER

A DEEP MYSTERY

Dallas, July 29.—Shrouded in deeper mystery than ever, the brutal murder of Miss Florence Brown, in the heart of the business district here is still an enigma to the Dallas police. Persistent efforts on the part of scores of officers have so far been fruitless and the police and detectives assert they have not the slightest tagible clew upon which to work. Numerous theories have been advanced and have been followed to the end, but without result. The girl was found murdered in the offices of Robinson & Styron, near Main and Field streets, at 9 o'clock Monday morning. Officers and detectives have worked on many different clews. One was that a woman committed the crime, and still another was that the deed had been done through jealousy. These were probed to the bottom and resulted in nothing.

A PLEA FOR BETTER SCHOOL

for the work for which they were designed. I should like to see the high school of this city equipped thoroughly for the teaching of all the subjects in the curriculum of a modern high school, commercial branches, manual training, domestic science, domestic art, music, drawing, etc. As a matter of fact we are just beginning, but we have made a good beginning.

If this decision of the excise board stands we may expect that the Board of Education will find it necessary to reduce the term to eight months. It is quite impossible for your superintendent and teachers to do in eight months what other superintendents and teachers are supposed to do in nine months. We have a course of study outlined by the State Department of Education. No school can expect to maintain good standing in the state system that does not provide at least a nine months term. You expect that your children will be promoted at the close of the year to the next grade. This means that during the eight years of elementary instruction they lose eight months or one year. In our course you expect the teachers and superintendents of this city to do in seven years what other teachers do in eight years.

I regret exceedingly that the Excise Board is not willing to submit to the people the proposition of voting upon the small additional levy for which the Board of Education has asked.

CHAS. W. BRILES.

AVIATOR SMASHES

MEXICAN GUNBOAT

Nogales, Ariz., July 28.—The Mexican Federal gunboat Tampico was destroyed today by a bomb dropped from an aeroplane over Guaymas harbor, declares an official insurgent message.

It was said that Aviator Didier Masson made three flights over the harbor before he succeeded in hitting the boat.

Gov. Ignacio Pesquera received word of the reported insurgent victory while he was on the way north from Hermosillo. He was met at Nogales, Sonora, by Jose Maytorena, the Sonora Governor, who has been at Tucson, Ariz., leaving the affairs of state with Pesquera. It was said that the two would confer regarding either elections or turning over the government to Maytorena.

Bond Interest Increased.

Oklahoma City, Ok., July 29.—The State's $3,000,000 bond issue to take up outstanding general revenue warrants will bear 4 1-2 per cent interest in place of 4 per cent. This became known today when Attorney General West filed a motion in the District Court to have the amount heretofore agreed upon increased $103,000 to take care of extra interest allowance.

It was explained that the board, composed of the governor, the secretary of state and the state treasurer, heretofore ordering the issue at 4 per cent, became convinced the bonds could not be sold at that figure, and added the one-half of 1 per cent. Gov. Cruce voted in the negative, saying he would favor instead of deficiency tax levy to redeem as many of the warrants as possible.

A FAIR WARNING

One That Should Be Heeded by Ada Residents.

Frequently the first sign of kidney trouble is a slight ache or pain in the loins. Neglect of this warning makes the way easy for more serious troubles—dropsy, gravel, Bright's disease. 'Tis well to pay attention to the first sign. Weak kidneys generally grow weaker and delay is often dangerous. Residents of this locality place reliance in Doan's Kidney Pills. This tested remedy has been used in kidney trouble over 50 years—is recommended all over the civilized world. Read the following:

J. M. Page, carpenter, Fourth St., Holdenville, Okla., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. They are just as represented. My kidneys were disordered and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage and filled with sediment. My back ached and I had pains through my sides. When I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills, I used them and they soon made me well."

THE Melting of Molly

By
MARIA THOMPSON DAVIES

Copyright, 1912, by the Bobbs-Merrill Company

SYNOPSIS

The teller of the story, Molly Carter, a young widow, awaiting the return of Al Bennett, an old flame, who is now a distinguished diplomat, tries to reduce weight. Her physician, adviser and next door neighbor is Dr. John, a widower and father of young Billy, whom Molly loves.

Molly is surprised at play with Billy by Judge Wade, who is the most dignified and able man in Hillsboro. Billy comes over from next door with his father.

Hillsboro receives a visit from Ruth Chester, a friend of Bennett's, and Molly finds her delightful. Molly goes to the city for an outfit of clothing.

Molly has trouble in reducing her weight. Billy's singing of an old love song about "Molly" under her window brings tears to her eyes.

She dines with Tom Pollard, her cousin, who is a "ladies' man." She decides to re-enter Hillsboro society by giving a dinner. The doctor catches her eating for bidden jam.

Dr. John and Molly pay a visit to one of his patients, a young mother. She doesn't know whom she really wants to marry, but thinks she will accept Bennett. Tom invites Molly to a dance.

Of all Molly's dances the one with Dr. John pleases her most. Preparations for the dinner are under way. Bennett is almost due in Hillsboro. Billy eats too much and becomes sick.

At the dinner, which is a great success, Molly receives a telegram from Bennett asking permission to come to Hillsboro immediately.

Judge Wade sends Molly a love letter. Which Molly thinks is too long and formal. Billy tells Molly he and his father are going to Europe. Molly disputes the doctor's right to part her and Billy.

Some days are like the miracle flowers that open in the garden from plants you didn't expect to bloom at all. I might have been born, lived and died without having this one come into my life, and now that I have had it, I don't know how to write it except in the crimson of blood, the blue of flame, the gold of glory, and a tinge of light green would well express the part I have played. But it is all over at last and—

Ruth Chester was the unfolding of the first hour petal, and I got a glimpse of a heart of gold that I feel dumb with worship to think of. She's God's own good woman, and he made her in one of his holy hours. I wish I could have borne her, so she me, and the tenderness of her arms was a sacrament. We two women just stood aside with life's artifices and concealments and let our own hearts do the talking.

She said she had come because she felt that if she talked with me I might be better able to understand Alfred when he came and that she had seen that the judge was very determined, and she thoroughly recognized his force of character. We stopped there while I gave her the document to read. I suppose it was dishonorable, but I needed her protection from it. I'm glad she had the strength of mind to walk with a head high in the air to Judy's range and burn it up. Anything might have happened if she hadn't. And even now I feel that only my marriage vows will close up the case for the judge, even yet he may—But when Ruth had got done with Alfred she had wiped Judge Wade's appreciation of him completely off my mind and destroyed it in tender words that burned us both worse than Judy's fire burned the letter. She did me an awfully good service.

"And so you see, you lovely woman you, do you not, that God has made you for him as a tribute to his greatness and it is given to you to fulfill a destiny?" She was so beautiful as she said it that I had to turn my eyes away, but I felt as I did when those awful "let not man put asunder"—from Mr. Carter—words were spoken over me by Mr. Raines, the Methodist minister. It made me wild, and before I knew it I had poured out the whole truth to her in a perfect outburst of words. The truth always acts on women as some hitherto untold drug, and you can never tell what the reaction is going to be. In this case I was stricken dumb and found it hard to see.

"Oh, dear heart," she exclaimed as she reached out and drew me into her lovely, gracious arms. "Then the privilege is all the more wonderful for you, as you make some sacrifice to complete his life. Having suffered this, you will be all the greater woman to understand him. I accept my own sorrow at his hands willingly, as it gives me the larger sympathy for his work, though he will no longer need my personal encouragement as he has for years. In the light of his love this lesser feeling for Dr. Moore will soon pass away, and the accord between you will be complete." This was more than I could stand, and, feeling less than a worm, I turned my face into her breast and wept. Now, who would have thought that girl could dance as she did?

By this time I was in such a solution of grief that I would soon have had to be sopped up with a sponge if Pet hadn't run in bubbling over like a lovely white linen clad glass of Rhine wine and seltzer. Happiness has a habit of not even acknowledging the presence of grief, and Pet didn't seem to see our red noses, crushed draperies and generally damp atmosphere.

"Molly," she said with a deliciously young giggle, "Tom says for you to send him $10 to spend getting the brass band half drunk before 6 o'clock train, on which your Mr. Bennett comes. He has spent $5 paying the negroes to polish up their instruments and clean up the uniforms, and it cost him twenty-five to bail the cornetist out of jail for roost robbing, and it takes a whole gallon of whiskey to get any spirit into the drummer. He says tell you that as this is your shindig, you ought at least to pay the piper. Hurry up, he's waiting for me, and here's the kiss he told me to put on our left ear!"

"I suppose you delivered that kiss straight from where he gave it to you, Pettie, dear?" I had the spirit to say as I went over to the desk for my pocket-book.

"Why, Molly, you know me better than that!" she exclaimed from behind a perfect rose cloud of blushes.

"I know Tom better than I do you," I answered as she fled with the ten in her hand. I looked at Ruth Chester, and we both laughed. It is true that a broader sympathy is one of the by-products of sorrow, and a week ago I might have resented Pet to a marked degree instead of giving her the $10 and a blessing.

"I'm going quick, Molly, with that laugh between us," Ruth said as she rose and took me into her arms again for just half a second, and before I could stop her she was gone.

She met Billy toiling up the front step with a long piece of rusty iron gaspipe, which took off an inch of paint as it bumped against the edge of the porch. She bent down and kissed the back of his neck, which theft was almost more than I could stand and apparently more than Billy was prepared to accept.

"Go away, girl," he said in his rudest manner. "Don't you see I'm busy?" I met him in the front hall just in time to prevent a hopeless scar on my hardwood floor. He was hot, perspiring and panting, but full of triumph.

"I found it, Molly, I found it!" he exclaimed as he let the heavy pipe drop almost on the bare pink toes. "You can get a hammer and pound the end sharp and bend it so no whale we ketch can get away for nothing. You and Doc kin put it in your trunk 'cause it's too long for mine, and I can carry Doc's shirts and things in mine. Git the hammer quick and I'll help you fix it." The pain in my breast was almost more than I could bear.

"Lover," I said as I knelt down by him in the dim old hall and put my arms around him as if to shield him from some blow I couldn't help being aimed at him. "You wouldn't mind much, would you, if just this time your Molly—couldn't go with you? Your father is going to take good care of you and—maybe bring you back to me some day."

"Why, Molly," he said, flaring his astonished blue eyes at me. "I ain't me to be took care of! I ain't a-going to leave you here, for maybe a bear to come out of a circus and eat you up with me and Doc gone. 'Sides, Doc ain't no good and maybe wouldn't help me hold the rope tight to keep the whale from gitting away. He don't know how to do like I tell him like you do."

"Try him, lover, and maybe he will—will learn to"—I couldn't help the tears that came to stop my words.

"Now, you see, Molly, how you'd cry with that kiss spot gone," he said, with an amused, manly, little tenderness in his voice that I had never heard before, and he cuddled his lips against mine in almost the only voluntary kiss he had given me since I had got him into his ridiculous little trousers under his blouses. "You can have most a hundred kisses every night if you don't say no more about not a-going and fix that whale hook for me quick," he coaxed against my cheek.

Oh, little lover, little lover, you didn't know what you were saying with your bally wisdom and your rust grimy little paddle burned the sleep place on my breast like a terrible white heat from which I was powerless to defend myself. You are mine, you are, you are! You are soul of my soul and heart of my heart and spirit of my spirit and—and you ought to have been flesh of my flesh.

I don't know how I managed to answer Mrs. Johnson's call from my front gate, but I sometimes think that women have a torture proof clause in their constitutions.

She and Aunt Bettie had just come up the street from Aunt Bettie's house, and the Pollard cook was following them with a large basket in which were packed the things Aunt Bettie was contributing to the entertainment of the distinguished citizen. Mr. Johnson is Alfred's nearest kinsman in Hillsboro, and, of course, he is to be their guest while he is in town.

"He'll be feeding his eyes on Molly, so he'll not even know he's eating my Washington almond pudding with Thomas' old port in it," teased Aunt Bettie, with a laugh, as I went across the street with them.

"There's going to be a regular epidemic of love in Hillsboro, I do believe," she continued in her usual strain of sentimental speculation. "I saw Mr. Graves talking to Della Hawes in front of the store an hour ago as I came out from looking at the blue chintz to match Pet for the west wing, and they were both so absorbed they didn't even see me. That was what might have been called a conflagration dinner you gave the other night, Molly, in more ways than one. I wish a spark had set off Benton Wade and Henrietta too. Maybe it did, but is just taking fire slowly."

I think it would be a good thing just to let Aunt Bettie snatched every unmarried person in this town and marry them to the first person they touch hands with. It would be fun for her and then we could have peace and apparently as much happiness as we are going to have anyway. Mrs. Johnson seemed to be in somewhat the same state of mind as I found myself.

"Humph," she said as we went up the front steps. "I'll be glad when you are married and settled, Molly Carter, so the rest of this town can quiet down into peace once more, and I sincerely hope every woman under fifty in Hillsboro who is already married will stay in that state until she reaches that age. But I do believe if the law marched widows from grave number one to altar number two they would get into trouble and fuss along the road. But come on in, both of you, and help me get this marriage feast ready, if I must! The day is going by on greased wheels, and I can't let Mr. Johnson's crotchets be neglected. Al Bennett or no Al Bennett!"

And from then on for hours and hours I was strapped to a torture wheel that turned and turned, minute after minute, as it ground spice and sugar and bridal meats and me relentlessly into a great suffering pulp. Could I ever in all my life have hungered for food and been able to get it past the lump in my throat that grew larger with the seconds? And if Alfred's pudding tasted of the salt of dead sea fruit this evening it was from my surreptitious tears that dripped into it.

It was late, very late, before Mrs. Johnson realized it and shooed me home to get ready to go to the train along with the brass band and all the other welcomes.

I hurried all I could, but for long minutes I stood in front of my mirror and questioned myself. Could this slow, pale, dead eyed, slim, drooping girl be the rollicking child of a Molly who had looked out of that mirror at me one short week ago? Where were the wings on her heels, the glint in her curls, the laugh on her mouth and the devil in her eyes?

SLOWLY at last I lifted the blue muslin twenty-three-inch waist shroud and let it slip over my head and fall slimly around me. I had fastened the neck button and was fumbling the next one into the buttonhole when I suddenly heard laughing, excited voices coming up the side street that ran just under my west window. Something told me that Alfred had come on the 6 o'clock down train instead of the 6 o'clock up, and I fairly reeled to the window and peeped through the shutters.

They were all in a laughing group around him, with Tom as master of ceremonies, and Ruth Chester was looking up into his face with an expression I am glad I can never forget. It killed all my regrets on the score of his future.

It took two good looks to take him all in and then I must have missed some of him, for all in all he was so large that he stretched your eyes to behold him. He's grown seven feet tall, I don't know how many pounds he weighs, and I don't want anybody ever to tell me.

I had never thought enough about evolution to know whether I believed in it and woman's suffrage, but I do now. I know that millions of years ago a great big distinguished hippopotamus stepped out of the woods and frightened one of my foremothers so that she turned tail and fled through a thicket that almost tore her limb from limb right into the arms of her own mate. That's what I did. I caught that blue satin belt together with one hand and ran through my garden right over a bed of savage tiger lilies and flung myself into John Moore's office, slammed the door and backed up against it.

"He's come!" I gasped. "And I'm frightened to death, with nobody but you to run to. Hide me, quick! He's fat, and I hate him!" I was that deadly cold you can get when fear runs into your very marrow and congeals the blood in your arteries.

"Quick, quick!" I panted. He must have been as pale as I was, and for an eternity of a second he looked at me, then suddenly heaven shone from his eyes and he opened his arms to me with just one word.

"Here?"

I went.

Charter Election in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, O., July 29.—Tomorrow's election in Cincinnati is regarded as probably the most important ever held in this city. The voters will pass upon the question of a new charter which it is expected will bring about many desirable reforms in the municipal government. At the same time the voters will select a set of fifteen men to frame the new charter in the rat of its adoption.
